1. LULU: "Why, Cousin Clara, how glad I am to see you."
LULU'S COUSIN CLARA: "Yes, I thought I would bring the boys and spend to-day and to-morrow with you."
LEANDER (aside): "Ye gods! They are a pair of little devils. If they stay here a day they'll destroy everything in the house. I must concoct some scheme to get rid of them on the next train."

2. LEANDER: "Come on, boys. Cousin Leander will show you the time of your lives. I know a place where you can have lots of fun. (Aside) If I don't fix these kids so that their mother will get away from this place as soon as possible my name is not Leander."
THE TWINS: "Hooray for Cousin Leander!"

3. LEANDER: "Hooray! That's the way to do it! That's what they call an Indian mud dance. Isn't it great sport? Keep it up; there's plenty of mud. (Aside) Say, I can see their mommer hustling for that train already. Oh, I'm a corker at scheming."
THE TWINS: "Whoop! Whoo! Whoo!"

4. LEANDER: "Now, boys, home again, home again. I'll bet your mommer never knew you could play Indian mud dance. She'll be very proud of you. (Aside) Say, this is so easy it seems a shame that a brainy man like me hadn't run up against something harder."
THE TWINS: "Hooray for Indian mud dances!"

5. LEANDER: "Well, here we are."
THE TWINS: "Oh, mommer, we've had great fun playing Indian mud dance!"
LULU: "Leander, Leander! What does this outrage mean?"
LULU'S COUSIN CLARA: "Well, of all things!"

6. LULU'S COUSIN CLARA: "Lulu, I think Leander is one of the sweetest men. Just look at the good time he has shown my dear angels. Look at the healthy glow in their cheeks. What do I care for a little dirt when it brings health and life with it? Well, WE SHALL STAY HERE TWO WEEKS! It will do the boys a world of good."
LEANDER: "YE GODS! Foiled again!"

Science Tells Us the Feminine
Brain, Body and Intellect are Steadily Growing Bigger, and Woman is Destined to Overshadow Man.

46 OMEN are just beginning their race. Men have pretty well finished theirs.

"We have all noticed how, in the last generation or two, woman has outstripped man in physical development. Among the educated classes where the essentials for health are understood and practiced the average seven daughters of today is taller, stronger and more active than was her mother at her age, and a genuine Amazon compared with her great-grandmother.

"In the last generation the average man has shown no improvement, either in body or brain—he seems to have reached his limit at a time when the average woman is just beginning to realize the superior possibilities of her sex.

"Already the woman's brain is slightly greater in proportion. Certainly it is not less. Fifty years hence it will be admitted that woman's brain has developed faster than man's.

"Nevertheless there are essential differences between the minds of men and the minds of women. Anything in the nature of rivalry between them is fallacious and absurd. Women's minds are much better for some kinds of work, and men's for other kinds.

"But the brain work of women is being constantly better done, with prospects of being done still better, while that of men shows little or no improvement."

WHEN a man—a physician and an acknowledged authority on physiology—admits that his own sex, both physically and mentally, must soon yield the palm to woman, the matter assumes an importance worthy of the most serious consideration. Indeed, the mind can scarcely conceive the consequences of this assertion upon the destiny of mothers and, therefore, of the whole human race—if it be an established truth.

That man—who is quoted at the head of this column from a lecture recently delivered in London—is the distinguished physiologist, Alfred Taylor Schofield, M. D., member of the British Association, author of several books on physiology, hygiene, etc., and an officer in many societies for the promotion of education and health in the United Kingdom.

Only a few centuries ago men were unwilling to admit that women have souls. Among savage races she is still a beast of burden. Barbarians bestowed dubious honors upon her because it was possible for her to bring men children into the world, to have dominion over every living thing—including women.

Now, even more suddenly than her possession of a soul was granted, woman is discovered to have a better body than man, and a mind that is compelling his own to take second place!

Yet that is not the full extent of man's humiliation—admitted by one of his own sex, who is an authority. Woman's mind is not only superior to man's at the present time, but it is fresh and young and eager, whereas man's brain is old and weary—incapable of further development.

"Women are just beginning their race. Men have pretty well finished theirs."

And that is the testimony of the expert for the day.

If Dr. Schofield had limited his concession to the matter of superior physical development for the woman of today, most observing men probably would give reluctant assent. The "Gibson Girl"—particularly as pictured beside her weaselly old father in "The Education of Mr. Pipp"—symbolizes the model American girl, and with much the same result as Du Maurier, ten years earlier, symbolized her British cousin. Both of them make the average man something little better than a business shrimp.

These artists, drawing their inspiration from types of both sexes in modern society, only slightly exaggerated the queenly magnificence of the human female and the marks of decadence in the human male—all of which is irresistible satire at the expense of the "lords and masters."

What Dr. Maurier saw and Gibson and other observing persons see while moving about in the social world, everybody is seeing wherever there are women's colleges. Stronuous athletics enter partly as much into the college life of women as of men, with the necessary result that Venus becomes not only Minerva in mind, but a mixture of Diana and Juno in figure.

She runs, jumps, boxes, wrestles, rows, and even plays matched games of baseball and football. Her strong limbs rebel at the clinging skirt; her corset becomes an annoyance of which she would be glad to be relieved at all times, as when she is on the athletic field; her shoulders no longer droop; her lungs, exercised clear to their tips, broaden and deepen her chest.

Being more systematic, more prudent than her brother, she avoids excesses in eating and drinking—lives generally a more hygienic life than he does, and is rewarded by every inch of height and every ounce of strength of which nature is the beginning made her capable of realizing.

That Dr. Schofield's conclusion is not based on casual observation only is certain, for in England within the last year or two another investigator—Mr. Karl Pearson—has made systematic measured comparisons between a large number of mothers and their grown daughters in all classes, except the very poorest, where both men and women are handicapped by ignorance, bad food and unsanitary surroundings.

Mr. Pearson's report says:

In height and span and length of arms the younger generation is distinctly larger than the older, the son than the father, the daughter than the mother.

"The increased height of the sons is surprising enough—namely an average of one inch; but the daughters' increase in stature over their mothers is really extraordinary—one and a half inches."

The great mass of figures used in the calculations cannot be given, but the following table of the relative sizes of mothers and daughters shows how great has been the improvement:

	Number of Mothers	Number of Daughters
Small (under 5 ft.)	130	87
Medium (5 ft. to 5 ft. 4 in.)	830	647
Well grown (5 ft. 4 in. to 5 ft. 6 in.)	248	358
Tall (5 ft. 6 in. to 5 ft. 8 in.)	85	221
Very tall (5 ft. 8 in. to 5 ft. 10 in.)	18	68
	1,370	1,370

Formerly it was well known that English girls were taller and heavier at thirteen than boys of the same age; but they stopped growing at seventeen and thus lost their lead over the boys, who did not gain their full stature until about twenty-five.

It is a significant fact, noted in this country as well as in England, that girls are maturing physically at from one to two years later than formerly, their increase in height continuing sometimes until they are twenty. This is a distinct advantage to the women, for the period of physical development in men has remained unchanged.

The increased mental development among women might be called a necessary corollary—men's men in corporate sense. She used to be underdeveloped because she had a repressed and unhealthy body; now that her body is unrestrained and healthy it contains a healthy mind.

What wonder that this mind, comparatively so young and fresh, able and eager to seize and assimilate all that the mind of man has gathered so laboriously through the centuries, should now take the lead, as the body has done?

The most familiar proof that this is so lies in the extent to which women are supplanting men in what were formerly the characteristic occupations of the latter. They have invaded and adorned all the learned professions, where—as also in literature and the fine arts—the feminine element is so often lacking as to cast doubt upon Dr. Schofield's assertion that there can be no intellectual rivalry between men and women in the same fields of activity.

In an age when the tricky attribute of the Greek god, Heracles, should make him more than ever the patron deity of commerce, women are conspicuous successes in business.

One American woman founder of a religion has now more followers than had Mahomet in his lifetime. One American woman financier operates in a fortress of gold which is impregnable to all the assaults of men financiers. Much of the best poetry and most of the popular fiction of today is from the pens of women.

What chance has the race of man, so old and brain weary, against this fresh, young champion, who has not yet attained her full growth?

WHAT HAS LADY ANGELA FORBES DONE?

Lady Angela Forbes Photographed to Represent Romney Portrait of Elizabeth, Lady Forbes.

That's the Very Curious Question King Edward, All London Society, and Even the Intimate Club Friends of Her Husband Are Asking, But Col. Forbes Wouldn't Live with Her and He Won't Tell Why.

Just Lady Angela Forbes is freed from the husband who refused to live with her, but the mystery in the lives of this unhappy pair remains as deep as ever.

From King Edward down to the lowest of the British nobility, nobody but himself seems to know the secret of this husband who so persistently refused to live with his wife and so persistently refused to tell why.

"What has Lady Angela Forbes done to bring upon her this vague and humiliating accusation—all the more humiliating because of its vagueness—that she was fairly lacking in some indispensable quality of womanhood?"

Thus the all-embracing question frames itself, and the answer remains locked in the breast of the husband, only lately divorced on the ground of desertion.

From the American standpoint the partial customs of late years prevalent in English society are often as curious as to expect perfection. Husbands who continue to live on the most happy and peaceful terms with their wives advertise in the newspapers that they will not be responsible for any debts contracted by the women who bear their names and are the mothers of their children. Wives move in social circles where their husbands are never seen. Husbands, with the city and country houses of their own, live mostly at clubs, or go off alone to the Antipodes for years at a time as though they had all the freedom of independence.

Their faces show other publicity in the divorce courts with the utmost sangfroid; they are divorced and marry other men, or think better of it, and remain single.

each other with all the splendor and well-to-do good humor all around husband of married couples, but the determined conduct of the wife brought her the satisfaction of seeing him making her a fortune for forgottenness and a renegade.

Lady Angela Forbes is the youngest of the five beautiful daughters of Lady Romney, who, under the management of Charles Frohman, acted during one season in this country, and who, two years ago, married the American stage beauty, Anna Holburn.

"I have details made up my mind not to live with you again."

The American wife would not submit to this insult. It was not so much that she wanted her husband back as that she was determined that the world should know why he left her. She appealed to the court, and by its authority published the following notice:

"Mr Philip Grey-Rogerson is by this decree directed to return to his home, Osborn Park, Cheshire, and to resume the relations as husband in fact to Lady Grey-Rogerson, unless he can show by means of a suit of his own that he is justified in absconding his wife."

"This order shall be published in India."

The order was published in India. Mr. Philip brought an act, offered an explanation, and he was remanded a fugitive from justice.

The course which Lady Angela Forbes pursued was like that of Lady Grey-Rogerson, except that she did not publish her reasons, but she did not publish her reasons in the newspapers, which she did not want to do, and she did not want to do it.

She refused a More Brilliant Offer.

Naturally, the youngest of this beautiful and high-born quinquette of sisters was expected to make a great match. Prospects were very favorable, for she was hardly out of her school days when she won the love and devotion of a rich widower of very high rank and great political influence. He pressed his suit with all the energy there was in him. It was fully expected that she would marry him and enter upon a brilliant social and political career, when she suddenly rejected him in favor of Colonel James Stewart Forbes, an officer in the Lancashire, and otherwise of small consequence except that he was her presumptive heir. Mr. Charles Forbes, fifth baronet of his line.

This marriage occurred ten years ago. Two children were born of it, one now about the age of the other six. For the first five of six years the young couple have been a fairly happy one. Colonel Forbes had a fairly good income, but was not rich. Lady Angela had extensive tastes—indeed, was extravagant, but that does not explain her husband's later conduct, for she showed herself capable of restraint in this regard.

So long as she could dress according to her station and gratify her love for outdoor sports—especially those which exhibited her horsemanship—she was contented.

The divorce hearing in Scotland, which has just been given, Lady Angela has declared, establishing desertion for a period of three years, and that she was a reasonable state of affairs, without in the least tarnishing the honor of the conduct of Colonel Forbes.

They lived together in various parts of the marriage, rarely in the same place. There being no suitable residence on her own property, she was nearly always in a house of her own, but she did not live in London.

At first her married life was fairly happy, but she was not contented with her husband, and herself became rather dissatisfied. She was determined to secure a deed of separation. The proposed case was given as a building separation, but she gave up the idea at her request. Beyond that occasion, he never allowed his attitude toward her. the idea at her request. Beyond that occasion, he never allowed his attitude toward her. Occasionally he visited her at her flat in London, but on the former occasion, he was asked:

In July, 1902, she paid a visit to America. On her return she sent a wife asking him to meet her in Liverpool, but this he failed to do. In 1903 or 1904 her husband went abroad, accompanied by her brother and sister. She stayed at home. When he came back to England he visited her, but in time he ceased his visits altogether.

She wrote to him on the subject, but to no effect.

He Wouldn't Quarrel Over It.

In July, 1904, he wrote, in reply to a letter from her, refusing to come and live with her, saying he had made up his mind not to live under the same roof with her any more, and adding:

"But please don't let us quarrel over it." This was his position at long-although he would not treat her as his wife, he saw no reason for making a public quarrel.

in some foreign country without him then he did about going without her. The question was asked:

"When you went to America did you go with your husband's consent?"

"Yes, certainly," said Lady Angela.

"What took you there?"

"I said a great friend who married and went to live in America. I went to stay with her."

"Have you any idea why your husband refused to live with you?"

"None," said Lady Angela. "My husband absolutely refused to give any reason for his conduct."

The friend with whom Lady Angela lived while in the country was Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, formerly Lady Hanna's sister. She and her husband were then living at their business country place on Long Island, near New York.

Love of the stage seems to be inherent in the Forbes blood. The Earl of Rossmore became quite an acceptable actor before he married Anna Holburn and settled down in England. The Duchess of Sutherland is an indefatigable patroness of stage

DON'T MARRY WITH ONLY LOVE IN THE BANK

To marry with only love in the bank is the height of folly. It is to bet to be caught on the spot, for frankness may be the means of making some couple, as in Cupid's kingdom, look on the present side of marriage before becoming united in the bonds of matrimony.

Love may be a very beautiful thing, but you cannot live on it. The lake would not give you a loaf of bread for a year of love. The blue seas to prevail with many young men and young women that the discussion of monetary matters adds the true sequence and sweetness of companionship. Of one thing they may be quite sure: The happiness of the marriage will be irretrievably spoiled if they do not fully understand their financial position.

It must be remembered that marriage is a most serious step, and that unless proper provision is made there will be a "rift with the lake" in a very short time. Of course, if all girls waited for marriage until their lover's bank balance was large enough to insure against all matrimonial risks it is doubtful if they would marry at all. But a girl should marry a poor man if, in the first place, the latter has sufficient money with which to commence married life, and she is content that the home should be humble and the most of living well within his means.

The great fault with many girls in love is that they are eager to marry their poor lover, but fail to recognize the fact that they are using him in a much more humble manner than that to which they have been accustomed. The result is that after a short marriage home his enchantment, and love, they begin to grumble.

Maybe it will be said that the girl who truly loves a man would be quite willing to share a hut with him for as long as was necessary. Quite so, but poverty is a hard taskmaster and she killed many a husband.

Nothing is so sufficient that a lover should have just enough money to commence married life upon and be content to so maintain. His sweetheart has a right to know, and should make a point of learning, what his prospects are, whether he is ambitious to improve his position and ready to take advantage of his opportunities at all times.

Don't marry a poor man with no ambition and energy. There are some men who never get on because they spend their time in completing of how handsily the world has treated them, instead of trying to surmount the obstacles and difficulties in their path.

The woman who is married to such a man is to be pitied, and every girl who is engaged to such a man should be warned to share a hut with him for as long as was necessary. Quite so, but poverty is a hard taskmaster and she killed many a husband.

UNCOVERING THE BURIED TREASURES OF POMPEII

To discover a Roman city of the most splendid and luxurious period of Roman history, filled with the greatest art treasures and the most famous of the most distinguished millionaires of the period, in the latest task assumed by archaeological science.

It is not a question of restoration, but of bringing to light the actual undisturbed city, just as it existed over 1,600 years ago, when Caesar, Cicero, Mark Antony, Virgil, Horace, Lucan and other works of classical times walked the streets.

The city to be uncovered in Herculaneum, the companion to Herculaneum of Pompeii, has been excavated, raised over and found for a hundred years, and only within the past generation has it been intelligently preserved.

Herculaneum, on the other hand, is presently watched by the hand of the archaeologist or the vandal, because of the difficulty of reaching it, it is so situated upon a steep hillside, and is more than 100 feet above the sea level.

The city, however, up to the city of Herculaneum, which thrives with all the facilities more than 100 feet above the sea level, Herculaneum must not be disturbed.

The Italian government has announced that all its buildings, streets and foundations must be permitted to remain without interference and besides an extensive fund could be afforded to pay damages for any building an entire city.

The archaeologists, face to face with the problem of restoring one city without spoiling another, have found the only way to reach the buried city, to dig down to the foundations of the city, and to build up the city again, so that it may be seen as it was.

The archaeologists, face to face with the problem of restoring one city without spoiling another, have found the only way to reach the buried city, to dig down to the foundations of the city, and to build up the city again, so that it may be seen as it was.

The Italian government has announced that all its buildings, streets and foundations must be permitted to remain without interference and besides an extensive fund could be afforded to pay damages for any building an entire city.

It is not a question of restoration, but of bringing to light the actual undisturbed city, just as it existed over 1,600 years ago, when Caesar, Cicero, Mark Antony, Virgil, Horace, Lucan and other works of classical times walked the streets.

The city to be uncovered in Herculaneum, the companion to Herculaneum of Pompeii, has been excavated, raised over and found for a hundred years, and only within the past generation has it been intelligently preserved.

Herculaneum, on the other hand, is presently watched by the hand of the archaeologist or the vandal, because of the difficulty of reaching it, it is so situated upon a steep hillside, and is more than 100 feet above the sea level.

How the Buried Treasures of Pompeii Were Buried Over 100 Feet Beneath the Earth

The man who sits before the fact.
And now then, when the whisper sweet,
And whispers with the smiling of love.
Turn around! like a blind bird,
My heart covered fluttering in its place.
I saw the lot a woman's eyes,
And yet I could not frame a word.
My tongue was broken, 'tween my lips,
A smile came over me.
And with my eyes I could not see,
My eyes were blind with weeping tears.
And then I felt the cold sweet power,
Through all my frame a thrilling glow,
To be so close to her, to be so near,
But there are many fragments of her work, such as:
Love, death, suffering, night,
Hither, there, dark, white, and still,
Like a serpent faded light.
And the moon bathed in
The perfume is gone.
The sunlight, and the time goes by
And I sleep alone.
It is very probable that after the excavation of Herculaneum the complete picture of which there are in the fragments will be found and restored to a complete picture.
Why, it may be asked, how such a wonderful picture as Herculaneum remained buried while Pompeii has been fully brought to light? There are several possible reasons for this. Since the early middle ages two towns of considerable size have occupied the soil which lies above buried Herculaneum. They are known as Portici and Ercolano. Twenty thousand Italians inhabit these towns, their humble dwellings standing close the ruins of villas once occupied by Roman emperors and generals. Previous investigators have regarded it as impossible to move these houses or to excavate beneath them. Professor Waldstein's committee will, wherever necessary, buy up the houses and demolish them, so that Herculaneum may be completely uncovered.
Another fact that discouraged earlier investigators was the great depth of the superincumbent soil, which varies from 80 to as much as 120 feet.

SAM LOYD'S VAUDEVILLE PUZZLE.

U.S. MAIL

The village postmaster is suddenly awakened from an afternoon nap at his window by a charming little Miss who surprises him with a request for a dollar's worth of stamps. She puzzles the old gentleman by asking for some 2-cent stamps, ten times as many 1-cent stamps as the 2-cent ones he gives her, and the balance in 5-cent stamps.

Now, to solve this little puzzle, can you tell just how many of each kind of stamps the postmaster handed her for her dollar?

To 1,000 of our young readers who can correctly answer this puzzle will be sent one of the 1,000 puzzle books which are offered as prizes for the correct solution.

Enclose your answer in an envelope, put a 2-cent stamp on it, and mail to P. O. Box 1551, New York City.

Rivalry Between Stock Companies a Feature of the Theatrical Situation.

If only Sheridan were alive now! He would greatly enjoy the honor which would be his this week, of having two plays from his pen running at different theatres—and two of his best works, too. His "The House of the Rising Sun" is to be produced by the Casino Theatre company, and "The House of the Rising Sun" by John G. Sullivan's company, at the Boston Theatre. It is a rivalry between two of the best stock companies in the city, and a rivalry which is sure to result in a series of plays of the same quality. Sheridan's company has been famous for its plays, and its plays are sure to be of the same quality. The other company has been famous for its plays, and its plays are sure to be of the same quality. The rivalry between the two companies is a feature of the theatrical situation in Boston.

CATHOLICS MUST OBEY GOD BEFORE MAN--MGR. VAUGHAN

So soon as the State breaks through its proper boundaries and attempts to trample upon the rights of conscience, then it cannot expect obedience. Obedience under such conditions would be but another name for perjury and apostasy.

ORDER AGED CARDINAL TO GO.

Great Excitement in Paris When Notice to Quit House Is Served on R. Chaid.

HAND-TO-HAND FIGHT AT ARRAS, AND MANY HURT. Troops and Populace in Clash at Barbentanne, Where Police Were Jailed.

MINISTRY DETERMINED TO ENFORCE NEW LAWS. Possibility of Worse Things Today Causes Fear Throughout the Republic.

Special Cable from the French Republic. Paris, Dec. 15.—Violence at two important points marked the war between Church and State today.

The government found it necessary to call out troops, and in one instance they battered in the doors of a seminary to expel the inmates. This has added greatly to the excitement and to-night there is a feeling of nervousness in all circles.

People are beginning to realize at last that the ministry is fully determined to enforce the law, and even the church officials have been reluctantly forced to admit that they have on the hands a much harder fight than they planned for. It is evident that they have been taken by surprise and are plainly worried over the outlook.

The first serious clash occurred today at Arras, where the bishop was ejected summarily from his residence last night. He refused to leave till he was forced to do so, and then a great crowd gathered. They hoisted the police and killed stones and eggs at the mob.

POLICE CHARGE MOB. The police charged the mob and a fierce hand-to-hand fight followed. Several of the policemen were hurt, but none of them were killed. The mob was driven back, but it was not dispersed.

Our Underselling Supremacy is Never Questioned

Again We Announce the Merriest, Jolliest, Most Enjoyable Occasion of the Year

Last year we announced for the final week of Christmas shopping, a sale which we called "Happy Week." The idea, which was new in Boston, proved such a signal success and was so keenly appreciated by the shopping public, that we are impelled to repeat it this year. We will dispense happiness by selling to each visitor during "Happy Week" one or more articles at prices that will induce so much real and untold saving that the merriest kind of a smile will be the natural and certain result. Also by showing at the same time the greatest array of Christmas specialties ever marshalled in this section of the country, and by placing many of them in the hands of under-priced merchandise.

Happy Are Our Clerks
WHY?
Because, as is Our Custom, During This "Happy Week" They Are to Receive ONE PER CENT of Their Total Sales.

SECURITY MARKET, Owing to Continued Stringency in Money, IN DEADLOCK Big Deal Near Franklin Park BOOM FOR DORCHESTER

WALL STREET LOOKS TO SHAW FOR MORE AID

Increased Volume of Trade Anticipated During the Week.

AMERICAN STOCK MARKET

The market was quiet today, with only a few transactions. The volume of trade was not as large as it has been in recent weeks. The market is expected to be more active during the week.

PEACE AMONG BIG CORPORATIONS.

By Thomas C. Shotwell.

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—One element of the stock market that is not being considered as seriously as perhaps it should, is the absence of any serious fighting among the dominant companies. The peace among the big corporations is a fact that has been noted by many observers. The market is expected to be more active during the week.

Wife of A. L. Streater, Millionaire, Charges Him with Marrying Three Others.

By Boston American Lensed Wire.
Chicago, Dec. 15.—Mrs. Vivian
Oliver Streeter, wife of A. L.
Streeter, one of the greatest railroad equipment magnates in the world, and also well known as a millionaire broker, is said to believe her husband is a bigamist and to be contemplating prosecuting him on that charge.

He was in, I believe, on a charge in which Murray Lupton who was said to be the man who was in the hotel in the city was mentioned. He is now charged to be in St. Thomas, Ontario. It was said that a second Mrs. Streeter

Miss Burkle is eighteen years old and constantly guarded. It is feared by the police that she will be killed.

Mr. Van Dover Street is not in her charge, and is understood to be in retirement with friends near this city.

THE INCOMPARABLE WHITE THE CAR FOR SERVICE

The new 30 steam horse-power White steam car with seven-passenger Pullman body is here. All who are interested in automobiles are invited to call and inspect its many new features, including the system of regulation whereby the steam is maintained at practically constant pressure under all conditions.

The various reports of the recent Automobile Show in New York City agree in declaring that more orders were given for the new White steamers than for any other three makes. Every indication points to the disposal of our entire output for the year at a very early date. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

Many of its Features Have Been Known to the Know-How-ers.
DRIVEN FROM NEW YORK HERE IN TEN HOURS

The White Steamer of the '07 model, which was driven from New York to Boston in ten hours, arrived in the harbor yesterday morning. The steamer, which was built by the White Star Line, is the first of its kind to be driven from New York to Boston in ten hours. The steamer was driven by a single engine, and the crew consisted of ten men. The steamer was driven from New York to Boston in ten hours, and the crew consisted of ten men.

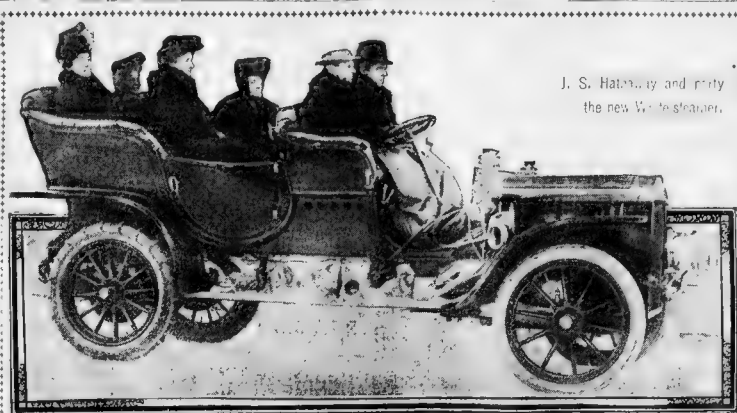

No Expert Needed.
Another way of stating the matter is that the most inexperienced driver can at all times get the same power from the car as the expert. The water regulator, which controls the water in the engine, is of a simple type and is so arranged that it is impossible for the driver to get the water in the engine. Think Twice Instead of Not at All!
THE NEW HAYNES IS IN TOWN
A car built by a firm with years of experience. Having only the Haynes Vanderbilt Cup Race to demonstrate up to date, we have sold enough cars to warrant us entering an order at the factory for all the 1907 models we can secure. When more of the leading dealers in New England towns want the new Haynes than what we can supply it means something of interest to every prospective buyer. These dealers are automobile experts and in a position to know. Great strength, forgings used everywhere possible, high power, fifty horse and light weight (about 3,000 lbs.) are the general features emphasized.
Our exhibit of drop forgings made in the Haynes plant makes a valuable comparison with the castings used on some of America's highest priced cars.
Take our word for it, now is the time to examine and order this new Haynes if you expect an early spring delivery. Three months from now your turn for a Haynes will surely bring a premium.
THE 1907 THIRTY HORSE POWER MODEL IS ALSO A CAR DESIGNED FOR SATISFACTION.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

ROXBURY STORAGE SALESROOMS

WE HAVE

Refused to Make a Truce

In Our Fight With the Piano Trust

For the Purpose of Raising the Prices of Trust Pianos During the Christmas Sale

Instead of Increasing the Prices on Trust Pianos We Will Cut Them

Roxbury Storage Salesrooms
WHERE PIANOS ARE SACRIFICED EVERY DAY OPEN EVENINGS

In our long and hard, money losing fight with the Piano Trust we have never given our friends, the people, an unfair deal. We have lived up to all our promises. We have fulfilled all our agreements, kept all our contracts to the letter and "made good" when called upon to do so all our guarantees, warrants, etc. A square deal to the public and a fair fight against the Piano Trust. Now, when the Christmas Holiday Season is here, the Trust wants a cessation of hostilities—the patching up of a truce so that they may pluck the public when it is buying quickly and carelessly. We have spurned the offer, and will continue to fight against their extortionate demands. We will never lend our name and business honor to the upholding of the fictitious values attached to their pianos. We will batter them down when and where we can. We promise you who have been thinking of buying a piano of us that the price will be a trifle less during the holidays instead of more. If you have common sense don't buy any piano before at least investigating The Roxbury Storage Salesrooms' sacrifice piano sales.

$5 DOWN $1 A WEEK—FREE DELIVERY ANYWHERE IN THE U.S.

A Piano Sale here is always a sacrifice, always a bargain sale, always a mark-down sale. The very nature of business, as the public knows, is one of sacrifice. The business here is not conducted like the business of a regular Piano store down town, where they are expected to make a profit on each piano—where they get their profit DIRECTLY out of the sale of pianos. We don't let any piano loaf around on the floor of the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms—it comes in in DUE TIME, a sacrifice tag is clapped on to it, be it high grade, low grade or middle grade, and it is sold to the first man or woman who wants it for the price marked on the tag—not a cent more or less. The selling price is made on the Roxbury Storage Salesrooms' "Expense percentage" basis and is figured to let the accounts out clean and clear without regard to profit—so you can see easily by this statement how these sales must necessarily be sacrifices.

OPEN EVENINGS

EXTENSIVE ALTERATION SALE

In order to give better service to our patrons we are making marked and radical changes in our warehouses and to accomplish these repairs at lowest cost by having new steel expense we have made sweeping reductions in all our prices on new and used pianos and organs. We have secured the services of a Chicago piano tuner, McMill, Miller, Steinway, Emerson and others. We have out of our carload of pianos which was delayed in shipment, and slightly war-nish-checked by the cold; not enough to harm the pianos, but still they are not perfect and need some extra polishing and oiling to make them good. As to these plans at moderate price and no one can afford to purchase a piano without first examining these.

If you want a high grade piano for Christmas at a bargain price, this is your opportunity. See us before you buy; it means dollars in your pocket. Easy terms if desired.

NEW YORK CENTRAL
MAY QUIT FIGHT AND PAY FINE.

Sugar Trust Example of Submitting to Punishment for Rebating May Be Followed by Railroad, Despite Appeal

New York, Dec. 15.—Rumors were circulated in the Federal building today that the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad would abandon its projected appeal from the restraining fines imposed by the Interstate Commerce Commission's shipment to Detroit and Cleveland, the evidence of which in documentary form was furnished by the New York American.

Application was made for the railroad appeal, but United States District Attorney Richmond would not be surprised to see it and pay its fine.

When the American Sugar Refining Company was forewarned on Thursday and paid $108,000 in ten thousand dollar bills to C. S. Commissioner Shields the Federal officials knew the fight against restraining orders was over.

The American Sugar Refining Company and $700,000 on the Brooklyn Bridge. The company had been fined by Judge J. Edgar Hoover, Detroit wholesale sugar dealers, to whom the restrained shipments

The Sugar Trust is said to have made a desperate effort to escape a jury trial. Its legal representatives are said to have gone to United States District Attorney Henry J. Stimson, with a proposal to plead guilty and avoid the publicity of a trial. The District Attorney would not consider this until the Sugar Trust had stood trial on at least one of the indictments.
